SENATE AND HOUSE WRESTLE WITH RUM, RECOVERY PLANS

Two of the Administration's
Three Bills on Second
Reading Calendar

PASS ON FIRST READING

Six Plans Proposed for The Control of Liquor
Sales

By G. Everett Doying
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(INS)—Recovery legislation pushed forward rapidly in the State Senate today while House committees juggled a variety of liquor control and taxation measures—six embodying Gov. Gifford Pinchot's plans and five others sponsored individually.

Two of the administration's three recovery bills were on the second reading calendar in the upper house. A third reposed in committee. Introduction of five more to enable the key-stone state to participate in the national recovery drive was expected. All liquor bills, including a twelfth introduced in the Senate, were in committee.

The two recovery measures swept through committee and first reading yesterday. One would permit the Governor to borrow Federal funds for a $14,000,000 public works program and the second would enable the State Highway Department to obtain Federal funds for bridge construction.

Construction of a state finance building and the Cumberland Valley Insane Asylum and improvement of a number of mental hospitals, welfare institutions, and state teachers' colleges is contemplated with the $14,000,000 of which $10,000,000 is to be repaid by the state over a 3-year period.

The third recovery bill and a resolution designed to permit cancellation of state contracts held by persons whose expenses have soared under the NRA codes remained in committee.

The Governor's bills "prohibit forever the open saloon" and thrust the Commonwealth into the liquor business by establishment of state stores, hotels, restaurants, clubs, dining cars, and boats, as retailers, would purchase through the state stores and make sales only with meals. The state alcohol permit board would issue licenses, the fees of which would be double those for beer retailers.

One tax measure provides for a $2 per gallon tax on liquor stored or manufactured in this state before repeal. The other levies a $1 per proof gallon on liquor distilled or imported after repeal; 30 cents per proof gallon on rectified spirits; and one cent per unit of proof gallon on wines. License fees for breweries would be boosted from $100 to $1,000 while distillery permit fees would be changed from $100 to one cent per gallon capacity with a minimum of $5,000 per annum.

Another measure would remove the 3.2 per cent alcoholic content limitation from the existing beer act and transfer wine to the spirituous liquor classification.

The Senate document on liquor would provide temporary prohibition in Pennsylvania after December 5 until a control measure is adopted.

Three other House liquor measures are patterned after the old Brooks high license law authorizing judges to license private individuals. Another would establish a liquor control board to regulate state manufacture and sales while the last would make it unlawful to transport beverages of more than 3.2 per cent alcoholic content except in original packages.

Hyman Under Bail In Connection With Death

MEDIA, Nov. 14.—(INS)—William Hyman, Sr., 50, owner of the Langhorne race track and a hotel supply company, was free today under $5,000 bail in connection with the death of Daniel Bradley, 21, whose mangled body was found on the trolley tracks near Broomal.

Bradley was at first believed to have been slain but yesterday Hyman appeared voluntarily for questioning after reading newspaper accounts of the youth's death. He said he was driving near the spot where young Bradley's body was found early Sunday morning, that he felt something brush against his car, but was unable to find anybody on the road when he stopped the machine. Later, on returning home, he found the fender was dented and a door handle missing. Hyman told detectives.

FAIR TOOK CHICAGO OUT OF FINANCIAL RED

City Was Groping in Hopeless
Bewilderment Before
The Big Show Opened

SPENT $400,000,000 ON IT

By John C. Hoffman
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(INS)—A $400,000,000 shot in the arm. That was A Century of Progress' gift to business and industry in Chicago.

To a city groping in hopeless bewilderment, its employees unpaid, its business and industry stagnant and despairing and its hotels and skyscrapers sunk in the maelstrom of financial quicksand, $400,000,000 is no idle gift. Conservatively, that is the amount estimated by the Association of Commerce as having been spent in Chicago outside the exposition grounds by visitors to the fair during the past summer.

It is virtually impossible to correctly sum up the benefits enjoyed by Chicago from the magnetism of its fair. That business drew the major portion of visitors' cash is a foregone conclusion.

A case in point is that of a family of four which came here to see A Century of Progress and spent only $36 of its $400 budget within the exposition grounds. Of this amount, $264 was spent for railroad fare, hotel expenditures, meals, clothes and sight-seeing tours.

Association of Commerce estimates reveal that the average visitor to Chicago last summer spent $20 outside the fair. Ten per cent of this amount, they disclose, was spent on shopping tours, particularly in the downtown section. Hence, $18 of every $20 went to hotels, restaurants, garages and other sources.

Some idea of the far-flung fame of the fair was given in a check-up at one automobile parking space near A Century of Progress in a single day. Checking the cars, officials found automobiles from 48 states in the union, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii and four Canadian Provinces.

No accurate estimate as to the amount of employment brought about by the fair is possible, but its own payroll from time to time was as great as $46,000.

These things hardly begin to estimate the tremendous influence for good that was attributed to the fair.

John Burke, president of the Chicago Hotel Association declared that hotel business in the city was increased more than 60 per cent during the summer. Hotels facing bankruptcy and many already in receiverships were financially buoyed. Others that were unable to meet their taxes have done so and are now flourishing with something approximating normal business.

Department store revenues in the loop increased from 25 to 40 per cent during the summer. D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair department store, said:

"The fair was a tremendous influence for the better. Our business, alone, was 25 per cent better during the five months period of A Century of Progress."

Similar statements were forthcoming from other department stores and even among the smaller shops in the outlying districts.

Downtown theater attendance increased 20 per cent, despite the usual summer slump. Banking perked up. Commercial banks reported 22 per cent more deposits than those of last year. Garages were comfortably filled for the first time in three years.

In short, a city once despairing is smiling again with renewed confidence in the future.

RAZING OLDEST STRUCTURE IN CROYDON, BELIEVED TO BE BUILT OVER TWO CENTURIES AGO; PROPERTY OCCUPIED FOR YEARS BY MEMBERS OF BROWN FAMILY

Original Portion Was Constructed of Stones from Vicinity

VACANT FEW YEARS

Ira C. Brown, Owner, Having
It Torn Down; "Fire Menace"

CROYDON, Nov. 14.—What is believed to be the oldest house in Croydon is now being razed. It will soon disappear entirely, and nothing will remain to mark its location excepting the memory of the present residents of that section.

The house is now owned by Ira C. Brown, and for many years was occupied by him and his family, following the death of Mr. Brown's father and mother who also resided in the dwelling. The structure, a large three-story brick and stone affair, is rectangular in shape, and contains 15 rooms. One end of the property was built out of field stone, dug from the premises more than 200 years ago according to the unauthenticated records. The architecture of the building proves that it is an ancient one. Most of the rooms have ceilings 10 feet high and measure 20 feet square. Mr. Brown has in his possession deeds which date back 200 years.

The property as it stood before the work of demolition began, was the original structure and a brick addition added thereto. In the original end of the building, built of stone, was what is believed to be a baker's oven. This for years has been sealed. The Browns purchased the property in 1897, when it was occupied by Morton Lewis, and in 1899 William H. Brown, father of Ira C. Brown, moved into the premises with his family, the structure being occupied continuously since that date by members of the Brown family. Ira C. Brown vacated the property a few years ago, when he built a more modern structure on the premises.

It is said that in 1883, before what is now known as State Road, was cut through, Elwood Bunting owned the entire 108 acres, and he lived in the Brown property. With the cutting through of State Road, and the diversion of much of the traffic off of Bristol Pike along this highway, it is told that Mr. Bunting and his family thought the dwelling was too public, and it was sold along with 53 acres to John S. Bunting.

There are two circular stairways leading from the ground floor to the third floor, these being typically spiral in type.

The beams of the building are of oak and are hand-hewn, which testifies to the antiquity of the structure.

Mr. Brown will continue to farm the land, but as the dwelling is no longer occupied it became a fire menace, and he decided to have it razed.

JOAN CLAYTON'S NEW NOVEL BEGINS IN THE COURIER TOMORROW

Pretty women at the bridge tables of the fashionable clubs losing fortunes, their inheritance, their stock wavings, their alimony, going on a double or a redouble. . . Women fighting to take bridge lessons from experts at a thousand dollars a course. . . "Experts" lionized by society and ballyhooing themselves to peaks of publicity in the newspapers, the newsreels, the radio. . . The whole country contract-bridge mad!

The scene is New York, the time is only last winter, the peak of the bridge craze. It is all in Joan Clayton's new novel, "Knave's Girl," which the Courier will run serially beginning tomorrow. But Miss Clayton's novel is not only the picture of the card-fever that struck New York society when the change from auction to contract bridge multiplied the winnings and the losses at the game. For against this background is played an exciting love story—the romance of the girl who became the world's greatest bridge player.

"Knave's Girl" is the story of Patricia, a girl who inherited only one thing from her father, and that an inheritance of dubious value, skill at cards. Her father had been a Southern gentleman and a gambler. She had been unable to get a job even as a file clerk when her proficiency at bridge suddenly became known and she was chosen as the partner of the country's greatest bridge player, Julian Haverholt.

Haverholt, for purposes of publicity, introduced her to society as his "niece." Patricia acquiesced, but in a little while she found it impossible to explain her position to the man she loved, Clark Tracy, the polo player, considered the greatest "catch" in society.

Like any girl with pride, Patricia did not attempt to explain the apparent inconsistencies of the "niece" and "niece" relationship with the man with whom she was seen everywhere, and in whose house she lived. And when she finds that three men want her, Clark Tracy, the polo player, Julian Haverholt, the bridge adventurer, and the Mike McGee, a racketeer, her story becomes the most exciting love story yet written about these exciting times when society people, adventurers and gangsters all rub elbows together.

Don't miss "Knave's Girl." It starts tomorrow in the Courier.

PRESIDENT NOT SATISFIED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—President Roosevelt is not entirely satisfied with the results to date of his gold purchasing policy, but as it is about the only middle-of-the-road course the administration can pursue between the inflationists and those who are advocating a return to the gold standard, it will be continued until time further demonstrates its merits or demerits. This decision has been reached in a series of conferences with his financial advisors during the past few days. No time limit has been set on the experiment, but unless there is marked improvement in commodity prices in the next 60 days, a shift in policy may be in order. Congress meets in 60 days. That will definitely end the administration's honey-moon period which has been remarkably free from criticism. Unless there is a marked return in agricultural prices before Congress meets, the administration is going to be hard put to stall off demands of inflationists that the President utilize the powers granted him last Spring to increase the currency. The silver people, the greenback people and all the others are returning to Washington in force to demand action. Not all the pressure will be from the inflation group; the other side, those who are advocating a return to the gold standard and a stabilized dollar and "no tinkering" with the currency, are going to be heard too. They are already becoming vocal after a period of watchful waiting and some puzzlement as to where the gold policy is leading.

Steady Fall of Snow Seen Here and Throughout State

Snow flurries which commenced in this section this morning had formed themselves into a steady fall by noon-time, with no prediction of a higher temperature.

The snow-fall was prevalent throughout the state, the falls ranging from light flurries to full-fledged blizzards holding Pennsylvania in the icy grasp of winter. With only the eastern seaboard reporting temperatures above freezing, highways were covered with ice and snow, delaying traffic. Accidents were frequent. Three deaths attributed directly to the snow and cold weather which has swept the state in the last week, were reported at Kane where snows were covering the ground to a depth of more than two feet.

No relief from the storm was predicted for today or tonight, although fair conditions were listed for Wednesday. Pittsburgh reported a low of 25 degrees today with temperature slowing rising, although due to fall back tonight to perhaps 20. Harrisburg's low was reported at 28 degrees and Philadelphia at 32.

COMMON SENSE SHOWN

There will be no presidential New Year reception at the White House this season. The decision to suspend the observance of this time-honored custom is credited to Mrs. Roosevelt, who gave as her reasons a desire to save the President the nervous and physical strain to which he would be subjected by such a reception and her wish to make the White House reflect the note of simplicity and economy now dominating the national life.

Both of her reasons are sound the first especially so. Mr. Roosevelt is reported to be in excellent health, but there are limits for even the strongest physical condition. Immense problems constantly are on the mind of the President. These make huge demands not only upon his mental faculties but upon his physical strength as well.

A New Year white house reception may prove a refreshing incident in the lives of the callers but it is a quite different thing in its effect upon the man who receives these visitors. There is no limit upon the number of callers. It is the time when every American citizen has, by custom, the privilege of shaking the hand of his President. Thousands usually take advantage of the opportunity. The strain upon the President by being forced to devote hours to handshaking can be appreciated by no one who has not had a similar experience.

The office of President is an exacting one, at best. A strong constitution is required by the occupant unless his health is to suffer. The duties are much more energy-sapping now than formerly.

Unnecessary demands upon him add to the hazards of his office. New Year receptions make such demands. Whether this feature of a White House life should not be permanently abolished is a question that calls for consideration. It is unlikely such action would detract from the popularity of a President. It would free him of certain risk to his health and make him better prepared to discharge his duties to the nation.

CAUTION TO TAXPAYERS

Municipal ownership of light and power plants has just been defeated in five out of seven cities taking referendum on the question, and the rest of the country wonders why. Will the government going into public ownership on a big scale, the utilities generally under suspicion for a number of reasons, and the public convinced that it is passing too much for its electricity, it was taken more or less for granted that municipal ownership would be a popular issue this year.

It is a popular issue with reservations, chief of which is ownership at a reasonable price. Apparently the promoters are finding the "snickers" a little more eager than they were in Insull's heyday.

Where the taxpayers have voted down municipal ownership, the seem to have had an excellent reason for so doing. They do not propose to hold the bag for stock in bondholders of light and power companies, which have become something of white elephants since the depression. There was ample cause for suspicion when utilities which could not have been induced to sell at any price four years ago suddenly became philanthropic and offer the people an opportunity to own their own plant.

Ice, snow and sleet accompanied his tread.

thumb, and a goodly portion of the center of the hand.

Mary Kowalski, the 18-year old sister of Edwin, brought him to the Harriman Hospital, where a great effort is being made to save the remainder of the hand. The lad was given treatment last evening shortly after the painful accident occurred, and the youngster was taken to his home. Periodic visits will be made to the hospital institution, in an attempt to save the balance of the tiny hand.

BLACKBURN TELLS HOW SCOUTS FOUND HIM HERE

More than 200 members and friends crowded their way into the Knights of Columbus Home last night to hear the notable speakers, at the first sports smoker of the season, sponsored by the Knights.

Lena Blackburn, Palmyra, N. J., former manager of the Chicago White Sox and present coach of Connie Mack's Athletics, entertained the crowd with his baseball stories of the many big league ball players he has met.

Blackburn also told of the time when he played shortstop for Bristol and how he would rush home from work, catch a trolley at his home in Palmyra, ride to Burlington, worry all the way up whether he would miss the ferry and be late for the game.

He further stated that it was in Bristol that the scouts from the big leagues watched him play before he signed up with Connie Mack.

Wild Conroy, former baseball great, gave a resume of his experiences from the time he started in organized baseball up to the present when he is now employed in a bank in Moorestown, N. J.

Another speaker who held the interest of the gathering was "Shorty" O'Donnell, the elongated captain of Pennsylvania University basketball team this year. He spoke on what you are required to do to make a college team.

Tommy Riley, famous boxing referee, spoke at length on his favorite sport, and also lamented the fact that the present day fighters were away below the standard of boxers in the good old days. The reason, said Riley, is that they are not taught the fundamentals of the art. Marty Brill, of Notre Dame, was unable to attend but promised to be here for the next show.

Thomas Collier acted as master of ceremonies, and James Roche, chairman of arrangements. After the speakers, professional talent entertained at a vaudeville show.

RESOLUTION

Members of the Bristol Fathers' Association desire to place on record, their deep sense of loss sustained by the death of the late W. Lovett Leigh, one of our early members of the Association. He was one who was ever loyal to the principles of the Association, he was faithful in all the duties assigned him as a member of the various committees upon which he was called upon to serve, and he was an enthusiastic and an active worker.

By his death we have lost one who gave all who came into contact with him inspiration and courage. He gave careful and thoughtful attention to all matters that were beneficial to the Association, and his sterling qualities greatly endeared him to all who knew him.

To his wife and family we extend sincere sympathy and invoke for them Divine comfort in their great bereavement. His presence will be greatly missed, but his influence will continue to be felt for all time.

Resolved, That this expression of regret and sorrow over the departure of this esteemed friend and fellow member be incorporated in the minutes of the Association, and a copy sent to his bereaved family, and that a copy be published in the Bristol Daily Courier.

SPECTACULAR GAME IS WINNER FOR TROJANS

EDDINGTON, Nov. 14—Running through a gauntlet of black, the Bristol Trojans came through with an 18-6 victory, Sunday, over the star Black Meteors, of West Philadelphia. In one of the most spectacular gridiron meets Eddington field has ever witnessed. With both teams playing the fastest brands of football, spectators were afforded many exciting moments as the padded lads tucked the oval and raced for many yards.

Under the leadership of "Hokey" Leighton the Trojans faced the fast visitors with a spirit of give and take. And that seemed to be the play-word through the four periods of sweeping end runs and thrilling aerial plays.

Receiving the initial kick-off, Stet Crossley made a spectacular return play to the center stripe where a short pass from Leighton to Mellor took the piskin to the Meteors' 30-yard line. Diving through right Tackle Schwarz gained five yards and then handed the ball to Crossley on the next play for eight yards and a first down. In three more downs Mellor took the oval across the stripe for the first score of the game.

During these successive gains Conn. Sorensen and McCurry played a stone-wall defense that kept the heavy black lads on their own side of the fence.

But by this time the dusky clouds had gathered and prepared for a storm that broke loose on the touchdown kick-off. Leighton got off a beautiful kick to the Meteors' one yard line where it was touched and fumbled by Vaughn, visiting quarterback. That dusky gentleman picked up the ball, stood for several seconds watching the oncoming Trojans and when the right time arrived sidestepped the whole team and broke into an open field with plenty of interference. Fifty-five yards he raced unmolested until he came in contact with McCurry who had stayed on the fifty yard stripe for just such an emergency.

After an exchange of punts the Trojans again found themselves in the territory of the opponents and on the last play of the first quarter Harry Mellor who had been playing brilliantly both on offense and defense, intercepted a pass on the 30 yard line and zig-zagged his way through the black team for his second touchdown of the game.

The second quarter showed the mettle of both teams. Twice the Trojan goal line was seriously threatened but both times the invaders were turned away, once when Hughes recovered a fumble and the second time by holding on downs. James, Lewis and Collins stood out on defensive work while Hughes and Tommy Barrett, new acquisition, thrilled the spectators on line punts.

The real thrill of the fray came in the third quarter when Willis made his speedy 70 yard dash for a marker. Playing with their backs to the goal posts and the ball in the possession of the slaughtering Trojans, Willis reached out for a short pass just across the line of scrimmage and made a record time run down the field with only "Chicky" Kutzer gameily in pursuit. But the dusky end was too fast and the ball was over for the only marker the visitors were able to score.

The Trojan third score came early in the last quarter when Barrett made a spectacular end run for 25 yards and goal. Barrett made a perfect showing for his first day on Trojan grounds and coupled up with the returned Mellor, Crossley, Schwarz, Donoghue, Hughes and Leighton, the Blue and Gold jested backfield will be hard to stop in any football game. Phillips, Gribble, Scheffy and Irwin played well on the line throughout the second half, while Mellor, Crossley and Leighton came through with many thrills on the offense and defensive play.

With no serious injuries meted out in the Sunday tiff and the return of Lefty Crossley to the lineup next week, the Trojans expect to make a good showing against the strong Disston A. C. from Tacony. Prodding along under the leadership of Leighton, the blue jerseys have set a goal of no defeats from now until the end of the season.

They Will Battle for Grid Glory This Week

Though a dozen important grid battles are scheduled for this Saturday considerable interest is centered in the games in which the stars shown above will participate. Oregon's surprisingly strong eleven meets Southern California's champion Trojans at Los Angeles and may provide an upset. Northwestern and Notre Dame battle at Evanston, Ill., with the Wildcats favorites for the first time in years. The Eastern classic is the Princeton-Navy clash at Princeton, N. J., with the Tigers favored over the Middies.

"Not like others"

"That good taste you're talking about is the 'seasoning' of Turkish Tobacco—"

"I HAPPEN to be one of the men who buy Turkish tobacco for Chesterfield."

"Our men live in Constantinople, Samsoun, and Smyrna in Turkey; and Cavalla, Serres, Xanthi, and Patras in Greece. The best known Turkish tobaccos come from these sections, and we try to select the best grades for Chesterfield."

"There is no other tobacco just like Turkish—it has a taste and aroma all its own. Chesterfield seasons them just right."
